The future

- EurOcean is based on the principle:
"No one can do everything, but everyone can do something".
- It is the collective efforts by the EurOcean members and office staff that has brought us to where we are today, and that will move the EurOcean organization, products and services forward.
- It is therefore important to expand our member base in order to divide the necessary cash and in-kind contributions on as many as possible, and to make EurOcean even more relevant and useful for the European community.
- The current and future strength of EurOcean is based on the collective efforts together with its Members, but also on its capacity of interaction and dialogue with other European Initiatives, based on the principle of coordinated actions for the benefit of EurOcean's Members, but also for the European Marine Science Community in general.
